EL PASO UNDER USUAL RAINFALL.

Year Closes With City 1.64
Inches Less Than Normal
Precipitation.

With the 42 inch precipitation Tuesday morning, El Paso is about to close the year 1918 with 1.64 inches less than normal rainfall, according to R. M. Shaver, local weather observer. This shortage is less than was expected, he said, because of the dry summer; and was rendered small by the generous rains of the past three months.

Rain and Snow.
Rain and snow were general throughout the southwest and Arkansas. At Little Rock, Ark., 1.58 inch was registered at 6 a. m. Tuesday morning. Amarillo, Tex., had one inch of snow with a temperature of 41 degrees; Roswell, N. M., nearly nine inches of snow, with temperature, 16. Hails were general in southeast Texas except at the coast.

Cold Wave.
A cold wave swept over the entire south Rocky mountain region, which barely missed El Paso, said Mr. Shaver, though cold weather is forecasted for Tuesday night and Wednesday. The temperature here Tuesday morning was 47 degrees; it is expected to decrease to 35 degrees by Wednesday morning. Rain or snow is also forecasted for Tuesday night and Wednesday.

NEW MEX. READY FOR INAUGURAL

Crowds Gather in Santa Fe;
Affair Promises to Be Very Brilliant.

Santa Fe, N. M., Dec. 31.—From as far away as El Paso and San Juan county celebrations have been made for the inauguration ceremonies on New Year's day. Old timers do not recall any inauguration in which there has been such widespread interest. The inaugural committee, which met this afternoon at the new Museum with governor W. E. Lindsay presiding, reported every preparation completed to make the affair a memorable one. The ticket sale for the inaugural ball assures the presence of 600 people at the Masonic cathedral Wednesday evening, when governor and Mrs. Larrasolo will lead the grand march. Of the fully 100 will be from Albuquerque and Las Vegas, while Albuquerque and other towns will send another hundred.

Lindsay's Farewell Address.
Before the noon hour governor Lindsay will make a farewell address. After supreme court justice Frank W. Parker has administered the oath, governor Larrasolo will make his inaugural address. A military and civil procession in which the men returned from military service will take prominent part, is to follow the inaugural address. From 4 to 6 in the afternoon, the public reception will be held in the new Museum. In the reception line will be governor and Mrs. Larrasolo, chief justice and Mrs. Frank W. Parker, lieutenant governor and Mrs. R. P. Pankey and mayor and Mrs. E. P. Davies. These will also lead the grand march in the evening. The music, both at the reception and at the ball is to be of high grade. Reception will be free to every one.

Governor Doesn't Dance.
The doors for the inaugural ball are to be thrown open at 9 o'clock, but the grand march does not take place until 10. Immediately after which the reception is to be thrown open, where members of the women's board of trade will serve a two course lunch. As governor and Mrs. Larrasolo do not dance, they will retire to the smoking and rest room of the Masonic cathedral immediately after the grand march. Still tables will be provided at which those who wish to do so may play cards. Here punch will be served and no doubt politicians and legislators will gather there for the first informal caucuses.

LARRAZOLO REMEMBERS HIS OLD EL PASO FRIENDS
"It will give me great pleasure to see as many of my old El Paso friends at Santa Fe on January 1 as I can find it possible and convenient to come," writes C. A. Larrasolo, governor-elect of New Mexico, to a friend in El Paso. He is to be installed as governor tomorrow at high noon.

The Brazilian delegates to the peace conference have postponed their sailing until Thursday after the inauguration.

LITTLE WATER USED HERE.
H. P. Jackson, superintendent of the city waterworks, says that less water has been used in El Paso during the past 50 days than in any similar period during the past four years. He attributes this to the rain and snow and continued cold weather during the past two months.

CONSULS WIDOW HERE.
Mrs. C. G. Robb, widow of the former British vice consul of Chihuahua, who died last spring, arrived in El Paso Monday at the Orndorff hotel. She will pass the winter here. C. G. Robb was vice consul of Chihuahua for ten years prior to his death.

GARDENERS
AT THE ELLERAY

Appears Today in "Infatuation," Brilliant Parisian Novelty.

The Ellery theater takes extreme pleasure in presenting to its patrons for today and tomorrow the world-wide celebrity, Gaby Deslys, in the chic Parisienne novelty, "Infatuation." This picture was made in Paris, France, and American photography fans will find the Parisienne atmosphere, which is so different, truly captivating.

Gaby Deslys, who is internationally famous for her wonderful dances, performs some beautiful (terpsichorean) novelties in this picture, but aside from the gorgeous, wonderful array of costumes and many French girls there is a dramatic story running throughout this picture that is intensely interesting.

See "Infatuation" at the Ellery theater today and tomorrow.—Adv.

CAVALRY MINSTRELS PLAY
TONIGHT AND TOMORROW
The fifth cavalry minstrels will repeat their performance tonight and tomorrow will give matinee and night shows.

The raggy songs, all breathing Broadway and the "new" humor, funny antics of these formidable comedians, Gray and Humstead, together with the legitimate comedy are "put over." These two men have both had much stage experience. In the second part, the management has introduced a novelty by way of a surprise, which always keeps the audience guessing.

TODAY'S AMUSEMENTS
J. W. KERRIGAN IN NEW PLAY.
The Unique will feature J. Warren Kerrigan, starting tomorrow, in "Prisoners of the Pines," his new contribution to his series of important screen productions.

They foolishly throw their money away on drink that makes them forget their duty to their families and to the world. Such is the story of "Prisoners of the Pines," and it is such as they that Kerrigan plays with and is regarded as a leader.

The prices for this fascinating play will be adults 15 cents, plus 2 cents war tax. Children, 10 cents, plus 1 cent war tax.

If you want to see just how Walsh pulls his usual number of flaming stunts and throws in a bunch of rough and tumble fights for good measure. The film is filled with amusing situations, a maze of complications, has many clever titles and a pretty romance. The picture is one of the best pictures this popular actor has appeared in. It is well worth making an extra effort to see and every yearning town ought to have a chance to see it. Mrs. Vernon Castle, in "The Girl From Bohemia."—Thursday only.—Adv.

IN BAD SHAPE

New York Auto Tourist Has Scant Praise for Thoroughfares; Snow.

H. L. Cole and family of Syracuse, N. Y., registered at the touring bureau of the Automobile club Tuesday morning. Mr. Cole said: "We came through Kansas and found the roads fair till we reached San Marcial. Albuquerque and Socorro roads fair and good, but that was before the snow. We were tied up with 12 west bound motorists at San Marcial for a week waiting for the snow to melt. The snow was two to four feet deep and the roads were bad."

"All west bound cars come by way of San Marcial, Hot Springs and Deming on account of the northern route being impassable. A road from Hot Springs to El Paso by way of Rincon was fairly good."

The road south of all roads leading out of El Paso in pretty bad shape. A tourist from California reported roads bad and going slow but when asked just how many days he was on the road stated that he reached Deming the fourth day. Six days were required to California by the conservative drivers.

The Deming road by way the Borderland is really better than the Mesilla Park route as the sand has been packed and the only rough road is after passing Albin.

Following will be the favorite mass game among the peewee group, ball ball, in which 50 or 60 boys will engage. Next will be wrestling by some of the younger boys. Then the boxing bout, which will take place among two of the smallest boys in the boys' department.

Graded apparatus work will then follow. Dr. J. A. Rawlings will present the basketball trials to the winners. The local association has carried off the honors in the international basketball in which all the associations compete.

A close game of basketball between the younger boys and the employed boys will then take place.

From 5:30 to 7 the pet stock exhibition will be open to the public. Already more than 100 boys have entered their pet animals. Last night 100 were seen. A number of prizes will be awarded.

Special musical program will be given from 7:30 until 1 o'clock. This will take place in the main lobby. The evening gym program will include stunts, mass games, and games by Adolbert Taylor and W. H. Shutt.

At 8:15 two strong basketball teams will put on a game. Among these players will be some of the "old timers" and also some of the local "V" boys who are home on their furloughs from the army and navy. Following will be several interesting boxing bouts, boys' tumbling and the closing event of the gym, a battle royal. The entire day's program is open to the general public.
